Does a gaming headset always need to be big and clunky? Krux Crave RGB proves that good sound and comfort can come with a compact size and low weight, so younger users will also appreciate them. They look great, too – their stylish RGB backlight gives your setup a distinctive identity. Each gaming session or a binge-watch of a favorite series is now pure delight.

Compact and comfortable

Who said that a proper headset needs to be heavy and take up a lot of space? Krux Crave RGB is considerably small for its type and has a low weight of 245 g. Thanks to this, it boasts high comfort & mobility and makes for a good choice for younger users.

Full sound

40 mm drivers provide full and clear stereo sound not only for the virtual battlefield, but also for watching movies, listening to audiobooks & podcasts, or even voice chatting. What's more, using Krux Crave RGB you'll know what direction the sound comes from, so no digital enemy will sneak behind you.

One-two, one-two, microphone check!

The headset's microphone proves useful while gaming online or chatting with friends. Just fold its arm up when you're not speaking – it will be automatically muted.

Stylish RGB backlight

Both sides of the headset's body are fitted with RGB backlight, which you can steer with the remote control on the cable (toggle and choose a mono-colored or multicolor program). If you want to use this function, plug the headset via the USB cable to supply charge.

Comfort for your ears

Along with low weight, the additional comfort is provided by hybrid earpads. They are made from PU leather on the outer rim and a soft material inside. This combination makes them comfortable and results in additional passive sound isolation.

Adjust the volume without reaching for the device

The cable of Krux Crave RGB has a remote control with two functions. The roller lets you change the volume, and the buttons control the RGB backlight type. You can choose from among several mono-colored and multicolor programs.

Connect it anywhere

The classic 3.5 mm minijack provides high compatibility with a wide range of equipment – as long as it has an adequate audio output. That's why you can connect Krux Crave RGB to computers (desktop or laptop), smartphones, tablets, or even some consoles. Your device of choice has a separate port for audio out and mic in? No problem – this set comes with a dedicated splitter.
